SHAFT TO COUNTY DOCTOR

Wauconda People to Perpetuate the Memory of Their Family Doctor

MONUMENT TO COST $400

Wauconda Will Never Forget the Work of the Kindly Dr. Dawson Whose Calls Were Far-reaching

One hundred dollars has already been pledged by residents of Wauconda and surrounding territory to build a monument to the memory of Dr. W. C. Dawson of that village whose death about two years ago caused such wide spread sorrow among the people.

Dr. Dawson was the practicing physician of the village for over fifteen years. He was a typical country doctor, no call being too early or too far away for him to answer. In the fifteen years of his service as physician to the physical ailments of the people of Wauconda he endeavored himself to all by his close attention to duty, and also for the many kindly offices at his hands.

He was born in Canada in 1851 and came to this state when in early youth. When a young man he took up the study of medicine, and graduated from a homeopathic and also a school of regular practice. Fifteen years ago he went to Wauconda, and started his office there. He soon became a universal favorite with the people, the many kindly deeds from his hands winning him a warm spot in their hearts. He answered every call that came to him, no matter what time of day or night.

To the poorer neighbors he was always ready to lend a hand, and no charges for his services were ever made. His kindly deeds would alone fill many a page, but enough to say that no chance to do any good to his neighbors was ever overlooked.

In consequence with this plan of his, when he died he left but little beside the good will of the people behind him. There was no estate to leave, and nothing had even been left to secure a decent burial. He was a member of the lodge of Odd Fellows, and this order took charge of his funeral.

Dr. Dawson died two years ago at Wauconda from a general breakdown, and was buried in the cemetery at that village. A few months ago the people of Wauconda conceived the idea of erecting a monument to his memory, and A. Boucherville took the matter in hand. Already there has been subscribed to the fund over $100, and the remainder will be raised in a short time.

It is planned to erect a monument costing $400. The money will be contributed from residents of Wauconda at present and numbers of those who formerly resided in the village but who have since moved away have sent contributions to the fund. Father Wolf, formerly priest of the Catholic church at Wauconda, now of Chicago, sent a good sized check to the fund a short time ago, and others who have reasons to remember the kindly offices of Dr. Dawson have also expressed their intentions of helping raise the money for the monument.

Since Mr. Boucherville first started the movement on his own accord, the movement has spread to be one of wide scope. Every man, woman and child in Wauconda is interested in the movement, and even those who reside outside the village have taken up with the common movement and are working to raise something which will show their reverence for the kindly Dr. Dawson.

The Boy's Reason.

An old man, upon seeing a small bare-footed lad playing in the street of a western town one day, approached him and said: "Young man, why are you not attending school to-day? Some day, when you grow up, you will regret all this wasted time." "Well, I'll tell yer, mister," said the chap, with a long-drawn sigh, "me mudder's sick, me brother Jimmy broke his arm yesterday, and baby's cutting teeth, and me oldest sister's getting married, and, besides, there ain't any school to-day, it's teachers' convention day, and dat's the reason I ain't at school to-day."—National Monthly.

FORTUNE SUNK IN ZION

Deacon Ropp Sunk $300,000 in Zion and Had to Work on Street.

An illustration of the misfortunes of men who joined John Alexander Dowle in his original Zion City scheme is seen in the case of Deacon John Ropp, a man who, when he joined Dowle ten years ago, was very wealthy and put into the Zion enterprise, over $300,000. Following the crash in Zion, Deacon Ropp was reduced to abject poverty, in fact, to keep himself and his aged wife, he had to ask for work on the streets in Zion. Thus, for years, he has been making a meager living, doing odd jobs, working on the streets, etc. His fortune was tied up in the Zion estate but he could not get a cent out of it and he could not borrow anything on it.

However, last week when Receiver Gus Thomas started sending out checks in payment of the investments in the original Zion estate following Overseer Voliva's purchase of the estate for $700,000, one of the first checks he signed was one for $30,000 which was mailed to Deacon Ropp in settlement of his $300,000 investment. While the fortune had dwindled 90 per cent since his investment 10 years ago, he was the happiest man in Zion when he received the check which was sufficient to again place him in a position of independence and to provide the necessities for his aged partner. Thus, Ropp at once abandoned his work on the street, he notified those who had been in the habit of asking him to do odd jobs for them that he would no longer do that sort of work and he is now seen attired in new clothes and showing prosperity which has been missing over since the failure some years ago. Ropp, it is said, has had enough of investments in uncertain projects and says he will not take further stock in these schemes now being promoted by Zionites.

BOY COMMITS SUICIDE

Fifteen Year Old School Boy at Lake Forest Takes Own Life

William Shields, 15-year-old son of Patrick Shields, a carpenter living on Laurel avenue, Lake Forest, shot and killed himself Friday of last week. His father believes the boy took his own life because he was despondent over having been ill for the last few days.

The boy was a student at the Gorton school and the members of his family supposed he was in school until his brother, James, heard a pistol shot and rushing into his brother's room found the lad lying unconscious on the floor with a bullet hole in his temple. The still smoking revolver was lying by his side. Three doctors were called but he died an hour later without having regained consciousness.

According to relatives the boy had always been in the best of spirits until he had a seizure of the grip a few days ago. Then, according to his father, he became despondent and seemed to brood over his illness a great deal.

The revolver from which the fatal shot was fired belonged to the boy's father but is said never to have been loaded before. The fact that loaded shells had been placed in the revolver and the boy had stayed home from school, is said to have been the reason the father adheres to the belief that the boy took his own life. Friends, however, are of the opinion that the boy's death was the result of an accident.

The boy was fully dressed when found by his brother and the appearance was that he had prepared to go to school. The indication is that he afterward changed his mind and decided to take his own life as he would not have waited until after 9 o'clock to have played with the gun.

POPULAR COUPLE

WEDDED

Mr. and Mrs. John A. Thain of Millburn are announcing the marriage of their daughter Hazel Margaret to Mr. William Ernest White, which took place at the home of the bride's aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. John Stewart at St. Anthony Park, Minnesota, on Tuesday of this week. The bride's father, Mr. Thain having accompanied her to that place, was the only one of their many Lake County relatives present at the wedding ceremony.

The bride is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Thain of Millburn and is a prime favorite among the young people of that village where her entire life has been spent.

The groom is the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. William J. White of Antioch, formerly of Millburn, who has been making his home in the west the past five years.

After the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. White left immediately for Flathead Valley, Montana, where they will make their future home upon the ranch owned by the groom.

Their many friends in Lake County, while sincerely regretting their departure are extending to them most hearty wishes for a long and happy life and an abundance of prosperity in their new home.

FISHERMEN WIN TWO VICTORIES

Big Meeting in Chicago and Springfield Committee Concede Points

THEIR INTERESTS GUARDED

Fishermen of Waukegan Return to City Satisfied With Work They Have Accomplished for Their Interest

Lake Michigan fishermen in Illinois waters, centering at Waukegan, Chicago and South Chicago, have gained a complete victory before the state fish commission and the house at Springfield and will give free way to House Bill 304 as amended, as their every concession has been granted, and it is a good bill that will go through the legislature.

Two big now-vows, one in Chicago and one in Springfield, brought about the desired result, and much credit for good work is due to Captain Richard Smith of Waukegan.

The first victory was won in Chicago. At a meeting there, attended by twenty-one Chicago fishermen, Captain Richard Smith of Waukegan, Chief Fish Warden Alldwell, Secretary Baldwin of the state commission and State Fish Commissioner Henry Kline and five Chicago wholesalers, the Lake Michigan fishermen put their case so clearly and forcibly and so well showed up the fate that would overcome them if House Bill 304 passed as drafted, that those present agreed to make every concession and put an amended bill only through.

At Springfield before the legislative committee, Captain Richard Smith and Joseph Gemmash of Waukegan and James Young of Chicago, a fisherman, put the case before the legislature in so strong a way that they got all concessions that are constitutional here, also gaining every point but one or two and it is now conceded that the new bill as amended will please.

At the Chicago meeting the fishermen formed a union for mutual interests in this state, and will meet once a month to talk matters over.

The Springfield meeting took place Tuesday morning. Captain Smith has returned to Waukegan well pleased with results.

DESTRUCTIVE FIRE OCCURS AT SOMERS

One of the most destructive fires of the year in Kenosha county occurred at the Kelly farm in the town of Somers, near the Lake county line, just after 6 o'clock Wednesday evening of last week and before the fire had been extinguished by a bucket brigade made up of neighboring farmers and firemen from Kenosha, damage to the extent of more than $6,000 had been done. It is said that the loss is entirely covered by insurance. The farm is owned by Timothy Kelly of Chicago and it is managed by Timothy Broderick. The flames broke out in the boiler room of the model creamery on the farm and spread to the granaries and ice houses and all of these buildings were completely destroyed. The large barn on the farm as well as the farm residence were threatened but these two buildings were saved after a hard fight. As soon as the flames broke out in the creamery people at the farm called Chief Isermann of the Kenosha department and asked that he come out and help fight the flames. The chief organized a volunteer department from men in the town districts and the party made the trip in automobiles reaching the farm just as the flames were spreading to the large barns on the farm. The coming of the city firemen resulted in the barn and residence being saved as the farmers were just about exhausted as a result of the long fight against the spreading fire.

Prepared for Emergency.

"What makes you keep giving me fish for dinner day after day?" he inquired. "Are you particularly fond of it?" "No," she replied, "I was wholly unafraid. I read a lovely recipe about how to remove a fish bone when it sticks in your throat, and I wanted to try it."

COUNTY LOCAL OPTION

Clash at Springfield; Confidently Expected Some Time Next Week

BOTH FACTIONS CONFIDENT

Both Sides Assert Through Leaders that They are Confident of Winning, But There is Some Missing

Leaders of the local option movement and their opponents as well, are marshaling their forces for the clash that is coming when the main issue of the liquor question gets before the legislature at Springfield. The struggle is expected to break next week, although it is possible that on account of next week being a short legislative week consideration of this important matter will be deferred one week longer.

A tacit understanding exists between the liquor forces and their opponents that this subject will not be broached until after next week's elections. It is planned now to adjourn on Thursday of this week until Wednesday of next week, because of the elections next Tuesday. It is possible that the local option advocates will not be satisfied to risk their issue so soon after the election and if so the matter will go over one more week.

With nearly every measure that has been introduced at the present session of the legislature being effected more or less directly by the liquor question, both sides will be pleased when the subject is finally disposed of. The advocates of the County option bill expect their measure to pass both houses by narrow margins. The liquor interests are making bolder claims and insist that there is no chance for the "dry" to get a county option bill through either branch of the assembly.

A bill making it a misdemeanor to drink intoxicants in public on any railroad train or interurban car has passed both branches of the legislature, practically without opposition. In its amended form the provisions of this bill do not apply to buffet or dining cars. The purpose of the bill is to prevent the rowdiness that has prevailed to such an extent as to make the life of railroad men in many instances a burden. The bill was sanctioned by the organized rail road employees of the state and was introduced at their request.

Former speaker Edward D. Shurtliff of Marango, voiced the sentiments of many of the members of the house in referring to the bill as follows: "I live in a territory that has been occasionally a dry town. There is once in a while a city or town that is dry and located on an interurban railway. These railways carry men a few miles to a wet town and then the consequences are laid to the electric cars. Many persons have objected to riding on these cars during the later hours of the evening for the reason that the cars have been turned into saloons."

HISTORIC RACE TRACK

IS SOLD

The historic race track at Libertyville, on which some of the lowest records for mile racing have been made in years past was sold last week under a master in chancery sale to Attorney Otto R. Hansen, of Milwaukee.

The deal is a culmination of a mortgage foreclosure under former master in chancery Elam L. Clark, the mortgage being foreclosed in October, 1910.

The consideration in the deal is given at $3,000 and Otto R. Hansen received from Master in Chancery a master's deed to the entire tract of land formerly owned by the Libertyville Trotting association.

Included in the sale are 105 acres of land owned by the association, the mile race track, barns, paddocks, and all accoutrements which go to make up the race tracks and stables.

The sale of the race track, it is expected will not have much, if any effect on the future racing game in Illinois. Mr. Hansen, it is expected, will continue to allow racing on the grounds, subject to the laws already laid down by the state in regard to the matter and some fine races may still be pulled off in the future.

BAD FIRE AT WADSWORTH

Business District of Village for a Time Was Threatened With Destruction

Fire, which for a time threatened to wipe out the business district of the village of Wadsworth Saturday night, destroyed the meat market, owned and operated by John Lux.

Shortly after eleven o'clock the residents of the village were awakened from their slumbers by the clanking of the fire bell. The Lux meat market was on fire. The fire had originated in the smoke house and before its discovery had spread throughout the entire building.

The village postoffice, an adjoining building, together with the Woodman hall, were in danger. Before the arrival of the village volunteer fire department, the roofs on both the latter buildings were ablaze.

A bucket brigade was formed at once. Over one hundred men, women and children formed the bucket brigade. Water was carried from all sections of the village. No water was thrown on the burning Lux building. Save the adjoining property was the call of the village fire department chief.

Men were stationed on the roofs of both the Woodman hall and the postoffice building. The water was carried to these men who poured it down the burning roofs. In this manner both were saved from destruction.

The mail and office fixtures in the postoffice were carried into the streets. Postmaster Strang supervising the work.

The estimated loss sustained by John Lux and others will amount to approximately $1,000. The Lux building was burned to the ground. A large quantity of meats were spoiled by fire.

GUNBOAT MAY ANCHOR

Gunboat Dubuque to be Used Instead of Nashville at Lake Bluff Naval Station

The plans of the war department to withdraw the gunboat Nashville from Chicago and substitute the gunboat Dubuque for the use of the naval militia at the U. S. Naval Training at Lake Bluff have created an investigating situation between the governments of the United States and Canada.

These plans include the taking of the Dubuque in through the Canadian locks and canals and Great Lakes with all her guns mounted and manned by officers and crew of the regular navy, and taking the Nashville out in the same way, to all intent and purposes thoroughly equipped and capable war vessel. If Canada consents to this arrangement it will be the first time since England and America were at war that the United States navy has been actively represented on the Great Lakes.

Special permission must be obtained from Canada before the United States can send a war vessel through the canals, and therefore it has been stipulated by the Canadian government that the vessel should be stripped of her guns before taking the trip. It is understood that the state department has applied to Canada for permission to make the change of vessels without alteration, and that a favorable answer is expected.

The gunboat Nashville made its berth in the Waukegan harbor but once. That was during the Waukegan day celebrations a few years ago. The Nashville, has however, anchored off the United States Naval Training Station at North Chicago on repeated occasions.

It is probable that the Dubuque will anchor in Waukegan harbor on its arrival from the coast. It has been frequently reported here that Uncle Sam intends to use the Waukegan harbor as his headquarters for the Dubuque on its arrival from the salt water.

ODETT IS TAKEN TO EGIN ASYLUM

George Odett the man who for years inspired awe and terror in the hearts of neighbors for many miles around and who was supposed to be possessed of Herculean strength to the extent of superhuman ability, the man who it was planned to remove to Elgin under the strongest guard possible, was removed to the Elgin insane asylum last Saturday. The few who saw the muffled figure recognized in it the once powerful frame of Odett, for it was withered almost to a shadow.

The wonderful strength with which he was credited was all gone and he was an old man, broken in health, that tottered from the automobile and through the massive gates of the asylum. A deputy sheriff was on either side of him, but it was to support his shattered body rather than to restrain any outbreak on the part of the man.

ENGINEER SCALDED TO DEATH

Waukegan Corn Products Scene of Terrific Explosion Sunday Morning

MANY HAD CLOSE ESCAPE

Frank Derr, Assistant Engineer, Receives Injuries That Prove Fatal After Being Taken to McAllister Hospital

Frank B. Derr, of 419 South Park avenue, was scalded to death by steam at the plant of the Corn Products Refining Co., Sunday morning, when the cylinder head of the company's largest engine burst.

Mr. Derr, who had been employed by the Corn Products Refining Co. for many months in the capacity of assistant chief engineer, was standing, it is believed, not more than 10 feet from his engine, without any warning whatever, the cylinder head "let go", filling the engine room with live steam. Escape without injury was impossible. Before Derr could gain an exit from the room he was scalded to such an extent that the flesh on his body was peeling from his skin.

Screaming with pain Derr fled from the engine room. Help! Help, were his only statements. As he approached the boiler room loving hands of fellow workmen grasped him and he was tenderly carried to the company's hospital. The accident happened at 7:15 a. m. or just 15 minutes after Derr had reported at the plant for work.

Wm. Alworth, of 118 Jenkinson Court, who was probably the only other occupant of the engine room at the time of the explosion, narrowly escaped meeting a similar death to that encountered by Derr. Alworth was at work at the switchboard, reading meters at the time of the explosion. Alworth's first action was to pull the load from off the engine. That is he decreased the engine's labors. By so doing probably saved the lives of hundreds of other employees of the plant. He next ran to a second engine and shut the throttle. He was unable to shut down the third engine on account of the hissing steam with which the room was filled. August Kenilworth climbed to the top of this engine later on and shut her down.

T. W. Smith, the chief engineer, escape from death was indeed a miraculous one. Not two minutes before the explosion he had stood for not less than 10 minutes talking with Derr. He had not walked ten feet from the spot when the cylinder burst. It was through Smith's personal efforts that the valve which shuts off the steam leading to the engine room was closed.

In one of the most remarkable runs ever made by an ambulance Derr was conveyed to the Jane McAllister hospital, where two hours later he died. His wife was in attendance at the time of his death.

When the engine room was finally cleared of the steam Engineer Smith started his investigation. He discovered that the head of the steam chamber of the engine had burst. Further examination showed that the piston head had torn loose from the piston. The pieces of the broken engine were blown a distance of probably eight or ten feet. The doors leading into an adjoining room at the rear of the engine were blown from their hinges.

Fewer fogs in London. "Twenty years ago there were 58 foggy days in London during the winter months, whereas in 1900-10 there were only 11 during the same period. The fog fad has been scotched, if not killed," said Sir James Crichton-Browne at the annual dinner of the Sanitary Inspectors' association. The reduction in the number of fogs he attributed chiefly to improved sanitation.

Woman and the Farm.

In defining woman's relation to the life of the farm, one needs but little reflection to become aware of the all-pervading quality of that relationship. Just as the monarch of France, when asked to define the state, exclaimed, "The state; I am the state." So might the farmer's wife, when questioned as to the life of the farm, respond, "I am the life of the farm."

When a Man Marries

By MARY ROBERTS RINEHART

Author of "The Circular Staircase," "The Man in Lower Ten," etc.

Copyright 1909, by the Bobb-Merrill Co.

SYNOPSIS.

James Wilson or Jimmy as he is called by his friends, Jimmy was a young man of about thirty, who had been a successful business man, but had recently failed. He was a handsome man, with a strong, well-set body, and a fine, intelligent face. He was a native of the South, and had been educated at one of the universities of that section. He had been married for some time, and had a young wife and two children. He was a very successful man, and had made a fortune. But he had recently failed, and was now a poor man. He was a very kind and generous man, and was always ready to help others. He was a very popular man, and was loved by all who knew him. He was a very successful man, and had made a fortune. But he had recently failed, and was now a poor man. He was a very kind and generous man, and was always ready to help others. He was a very popular man, and was loved by all who knew him.

"Just told them in," I said despondently. "It isn't difficult." And because I was so transparent a fraud and knew he must find me out then, I said something about butter, and went into the pantry. That's the trouble with a lie: somebody asks you to tell one as a favor to somebody else, and the first thing you know, you are having to tell a thousand, and trying to remember the ones you have told so you won't contradict yourself, and the very person you have tried to help turns on you and reproaches you for being untruthful. I leaned my elbows despondently on the shelf of the kitchen pantry, with the foot of a guard visible through the high window over my head, and waited for Mr. Harbison to come in and demand that I fold a raw egg, and discover that I didn't know anything about cooking, and was just as useless as all the others.

He came. He held the bowl out to me and waved a fork in triumph. "I have solved it," he said. "Or, rather, Flannigan and I have solved it. The mixture awaits the magic touch of the cook."

I honestly thought I could do the rest. It was only to be put in a pan and browned, and then in the oven three minutes. And I did it properly, but for two things: I should have greased the pan (but this was the cook's fault; it didn't say) and I should have lighted the oven. The letter, however, was Mr. Harbison's fault as much as mine, and I had wit enough to lay it to absent-mindedness on the part of both of us.

After that, Aunt Selma or no Aunt Selma, we decided to have boiled eggs, and Mr. Harbison knew how to cook them. He put them in the teakettle and then went to look at the furnace. And Officer Timothy Flannigan ground the coffee and gave his opinion of the board of health in no stilted terms. As for me, I burned my fingers and the toast, and felt myself growing hot and cold, for I was going to be found out as soon as Flannigan grasped the situation.

Then, of course, I did the thing that caused me so much trouble later. I put down the toaster—at least the Harbison man said it was a toaster—and went over and stood in front of the policeman.

"I don't suppose you will understand—exactly," I said, "but—but if anything occurs to—to make you think I am not—that things are not what they seem to be—I mean, what I say they are—you will understand that it is a joke, won't you? A joke, you know."

Yes, that was what I said. I know it sounds like a raving delirium, but when Max came down and squizzled some bacon, as he said, and told Flannigan about the robbery, and how, whether it was a joke or deadly earnest, somebody in the house had taken Anne's pearls, that wretched policeman winked at me solemnly over Max's shoulder. Oh, it was awful!

And, to add to my discomfort, the most unpleasant ideas would obtrude themselves. What was Mr. Harbison doing on the first floor of the house that night? Ice water, he had said. But there had been plenty of water in the studio! And he had told me it was the furnace.

Mr. Harbison came back in a half hour, and I remembered the eggs. We fished them out of the tea kettle and they were perfectly hard, but we ate them.

The doctor from the board of health came that morning and vaccinated us. There was a great deal of excitement, and Aunt Selma was done on the arm. As she did not affect evening clothes this was entirely natural, but later on in the week, when the wretched things began to take, nobody dared to limp, and Lella made a terrible break by wearing a bandage on her left arm, after telling Aunt Selma she had been vaccinated on the right.

CHAPTER VIII.

Correspondents' Department.

The following letters were found in the house post-box after the lifting of the quarantine, and later were presented to me by their writers, bound in white kid (the letters, not the authors, of course).

From Thomas Harbison, late engineer of bridges, Peruvian trunk lines, South America, to Henry Llewellyn, care of Union Nitrate company, Iquique, Chile.

Dear Old Man:

I think I was fully a week trying to drive out of my mind my last glimpse of you with your sickly grin, pretending to be tickled to pieces that the only white man within 200 miles of your shack was going on a holiday. You old bluffer! I used to hang over the rail of the steamer, on the way up, and see you standing as I left you beside the car with its mule and the Indian driver, and behind you a million miles of soul-destroying pampa. Never mind, Jack; I sent yesterday by mail steamer the cigarettes, pipes and tobacco, canned goods and poker chips. Put in some magazines, too, and the collars. Don't know about the ties—guess it won't matter down there.

Nothing happened on the trip. One of the engines broke down three days out, and I spent all my time before decks for 48 hours. Chief engineer raved with D. T's. Got the engine fixed in record time, and haven't got my hands clean yet. It was bulky.

With this I send the papers, which will tell you how I happen to be here, and why I have leisure to write you three days after landing. If the situation were not so ridiculous, it would be maddening. Here I am, off for a holiday and congratulating myself that I am foot free and heart free—yes, my friend, heart free—here I am, shut in the house of a man I never saw until last night, and wouldn't care if I never saw again, with a lot of people who never heard of me, who are almost equally vague about South America, who play as hard at bridge as I ever worked at building one (forgive this, won't you? the novelty has gone to my head), and who belong to the very class of extravagant, luxury-loving, non-producing parasites (isn't that what we called them?) that you and I used to revile from our lofty Andean pinnacles.

To come down to earth: Here we are, six women and five men, including a policeman, not a servant in the house, and no one who knows how to do anything. They are really immensely interesting, these people. They all know each other very well, and it is "Jimmy" here, and "Dai" there—Dallas Brown, who went to India with me; you remember my speaking of him—and they are good-natured, too, except at meal times. The little hostess, Mrs. Wilson, took over the cooking, and although luncheon was better than breakfast, the food still leaves much to the imagination.

I wish you could see this Mrs. Wilson, Hal. You would change a whole lot of your ideas. She is a thoroughbred, sure enough, and of course some of her beauty is the result of the exquisite care about which you and I—still from our Andean pinnacles—used to rant. But the fact is, she is more than that. She has fire, and pluck, and end. If you could have seen her this morning, standing in front of a cold kitchen range, determined to conquer it, and had seen the tilt of her chin when I offered to take over the cooking—you needn't grin; I can cook, and you know it—you would understand what I mean. It was so clear that she was paralyzed with fright at the idea of getting breakfast, and equally clear that she meant to do it. By the way, I have learned that her name was McNair before she married this would-be artist, Wilson, and that she is a daughter of the McNair who financed the Callao branch!

I have not met the others so intimately. There are two sisters named Morcer, inclined to be noisy—they are playing roulette in the next room now. One is small and dark, almost Hebraic in type, named Lella, and called Lollie. The other, larger, very blonde and languishing, and with a decided preference for masculine society, even saying the mark, minor! Dallas Brown's wife, good looking, smokes cigarettes when I am not around—they all do, except Mrs. Wilson. Then there is a maiden aunt who is ill today with gripple and excitement, and a Miss Knowles, who came for a moment last night to see Mrs. Wilson, was caught in the quarantine (see papers), and, after hiding all night in the basement, is sulking all day in her room. Her presence created an excitement out of all proportion to the apparent cause.

From the fact that I have reason to know that my artist host and his beautiful wife are on bad terms, and from the significant glances with which the announcement of Miss Knowles' presence was met, the state of affairs seems rather clear. Wilson impresses me as a spineless sort, anyhow, and when the lady of the basement shut herself away from the rest today and I happened on "Jimmy," as they call him, pleading with her through the door, I very nearly kicked him down the stairs. Oh, yes, I'll keep out, right enough; it isn't my affair.

By the way, after quarantine and with the policeman locked in the furnace room, a pearl necklace and a diamond bracelet were stolen! Just ten of us to divide the suspense! Upon my word, Hal, it's the queerest situation I ever heard of. Which of us did it? I make a guess that not a few of us are fools, but which is the knave? The worst of it is, I am the only unaccustomed member of the household!

This is more scandal than I ever wrote in my life. Lay it to circumscripted environment, and the lack of 20 miles over the pampa before breakfast. We have all been vaccinated, and the officious gentlemen from the board of health have taken their grins and their formaldehyde and gone. Ye gods, how we cough!

The Carlton order will go through all right, I think. Phoned him this morning. If it does, old man, we will take a month in September and explore the Mercator property.

Do you know, Hal, I have been thinking lately that you and I stick too close to the grid. Business is right enough, but what's the use of spending one's best years succeeding in everything except the things that are worth while? I'll be thirty sooner than I care to say, and—oh, well, you won't understand. You'll sit down there, with the Southern Cross and the rest of the infernal astronomical galaxy looking down on you, and the Indians chanting in the village, and you will think I have grown sentimental. I have not. You and I down there have been looking at the world through the reverse end of the glass. It's a bully old world, Hal, and this is God's part of it.

Burn this letter after you read it; I suspect it is covered with germs. Well, happy days, old man.

Yours, TOM.

P. S.—By the way, can't you spare some of the Indian pottery you picked up at Callao? I told Mrs. Wilson about it, and she was immensely interested. Send it to this address. Can you get it to the next steamer?—T.

From Maxwell Reed to Richard Burton Bagley, Unirreality club, New York.

Dear Dick:

Inclosed find my check for five hundred, as per wager. Possibly you were within your right in protecting your bet in the manner you chose, but while I do not wish to be offensive, your reporters are damnable so.

They Do Things Better in France. It is no easy matter to be married in France, says F. Berkeley Smith, in Success Magazine. One great thing in favor of so sacred a ceremony is that it cannot be hastily performed. It is an event requiring months of preparation, of the signing of endless papers, the certificates of birth and the consent of parents, until at last the wedding day, which has been arranged for to the entire satisfaction of every one concerned, including the legal authorities, arrives. If marriage is difficult, divorce is even more so. There are no such romantic and youthful adventures as eloping on a $12 capital—handing tea to the accommodating parson and wiring for forgiveness with the change.

The Migration of Storks. Reference has been made to the departure of the storks from Alsace. The ornithological bureau of Budapest has recently published the results of an interesting experiment. To the leg of a number of young birds a light disk was attached, stating the place of origin and in the event of capture asking that the label might be detached and forwarded to Budapest.

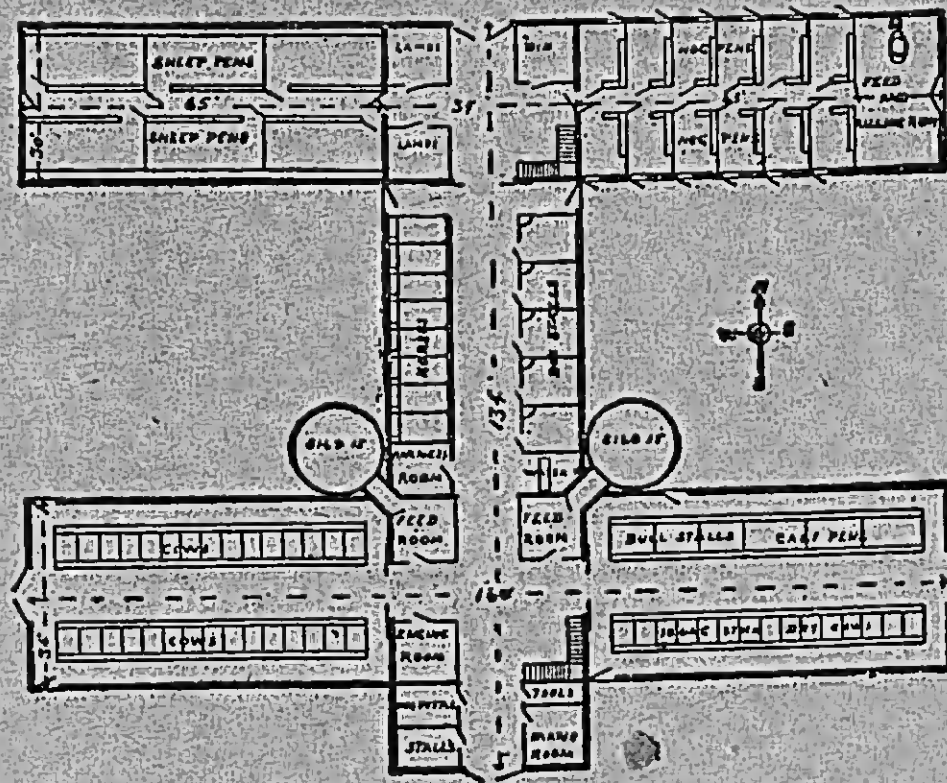

The Rings returned show that the birds have reached Basutoiland, the Transvaal and Cape Colony. Unfortunately only two of the ten captured birds escaped death. Eight of those graceful creatures had fallen to the unrelenting and unerring aim of the sportsman, improperly so called.

Gene Before. Penn—Do you see anything of our old friend Growler? Last time I saw him he said he didn't like New York. Gothamite—That's so, but I guess he'd rather be in New York than where he is now.

Penn—Where is he now? Gothamite—I wouldn't care to say. He's dead—Catholic Standard Times.

ELABORATE STOCK BARN FOR MISSOURI STOCKMAN

Rather Odd-Shaped Structure so Built to Have All Animals Under Same Roof and Keep Each Department Separate.

Floor Plan of Stock Barn.

The stock barn herewith illustrated was planned for a Missouri stockman, writes J. E. Bridgman in the Orange Juice Farmer. The rather odd shape was adopted for several reasons: First, to have all the stock under one roof; second, to keep each department separate from the other departments; third, to reduce to the minimum the amount of labor required for feeding the stock; fourth, to save and economically use every pound of manure.

The floor plan of the structure is 34x100 feet from east to west, and 34x134 feet from north to south, and the two ends for hogs and sheep are each 30x65 feet. The walls are 10 feet to the eaves, and the roof is self-supporting, which leaves a clear space through the entire loft for storing hay, etc. All partitions are eight feet, except over the south front, where they are 10 feet from the feed rooms to the south front. This is done to allow for driving in a load of hay in stormy weather. There are 45 cow stalls, three bull stalls, two hospital stalls, and three calf pens. The horse barn has eight single stalls and five large box stalls; the sheep barn has six sheep pens 11x21 feet each, and two lamb pens; the hog house has 12 pens 8x11 feet each, also a feed and killing room 16x23 feet.

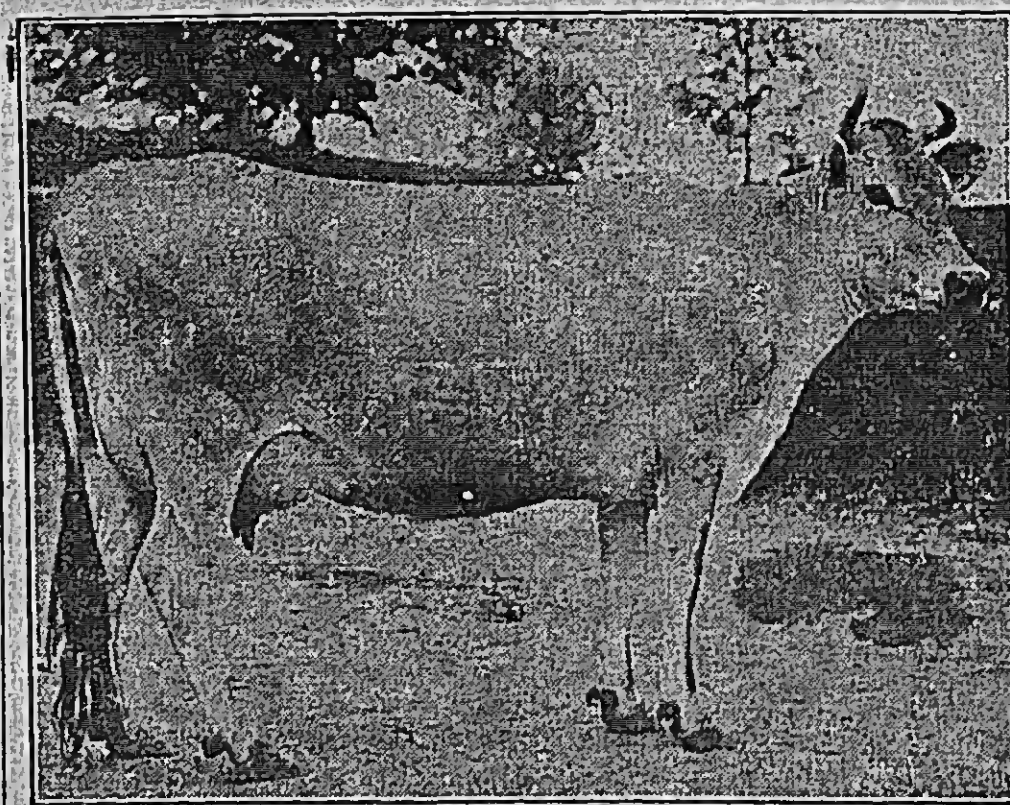

The south front has a tool room, engine room and a watchman's room. Stairways are located in both north and south ends of the barn. The feed rooms for horses and cows are so arranged that the silage may be dropped down the small chute in front of the silos. The door of this chute is always closed, so that no odors may enter the cow barn. A small gas engine is used for elevating the ground feed to six hopper-shaped bins, located over the feed rooms. The feed is drawn from the bins through small spouts as wanted.

Bins for storing feed for hogs and sheep are located over the sheep and hog barns. All feed is handled with feed carriers, and the trucks run through all parts of the barn. All manure and litter is also handled with carriers, and when not spread at once, is stored in a cement manure house.

Enallage.

Enallage is one of the cheapest succulent feeds that can be supplied to farm animals during the winter. It is good feed, handy to deal out and very much relished by all classes of stock.

CHAMPION JERSEY FOR MILK

Another world's record has been broken. The new queen of the dairy is a beautiful Jersey cow named Sophie Nineteenth of Hood Farm, owned and tested at Hood farm, Lowell, Mass. She is the champion Jersey for milk and butter fat production of cows between four and five years of age.

During the 12 months ending December 31, 1910, on a test authenticated by the Massachusetts Agricultural college, under the rules of the American Jersey Cattle club, Sophie Nineteenth of Hood farm gave 14,373 pounds 3 ounces milk, testing 1,011 pounds 5 ounces butter or over half a ton. An accurate account was kept of her feed, and her milk sold at ten cents per quart made a profit of $665.22.

The United States department of agriculture's estimate in round numbers of the wealth produced each year by the 22,000,000 cows in the United States is $800,000,000, or an average profit of $36.36 per cow. If more attention was paid to feeding and breeding it should be easy to increase the average profit per cow to at least one-tenth of the profit made by Sophie Nineteenth of Hood farm, which would raise the total to $1,240,000,000, an increase of $440,000,000.

Customers for Farmers.

It pays to go down to the city and work up a trade for the farm produce. Hunt up customers for the "butter, eggs, apples, potatoes, cabbage and all such stuff." Have a regular market day when you can always be found there. Folks will expect you and depend on you. They will pay you cash and as good prices as they would have to pay at the store, because they get better weight and measure and fresher produce.

Parental Tactics.

A worried parent is sometimes obliged to do something like this:

"In what is a transcendentalist?"

"Have you chained up the dog as I told you?"

"Not yet, pa."

"Well, do that, and when you come back I will tell you what a transcendentalist is."

While Bobby was gone his astute parent dug the needed information out of a dictionary.

IDEAS AS TO ADULTERATION

How Different Ages Change Opinions—Hops Once Considered as Harmful as Ale.

"Different ages have different ideas as to what constitutes adulteration," says a writer. "Most people nowadays regard the hop as a staple ingredient of beer, but in the seventeenth century the city of London petitioned parliament against its use in brewing, describing it as a 'wicked weed, which spoils the drink and endangers the lives of the people.' John Evelyn was a strong supporter of the anti-hop crusade. Hops, he declared, had 'transmuted our ale into beer and doubtless much altered our constitutions.' He allowed that their use improved the flavor of the liquor, but 'repaid the pleasure' with 'tormenting diseases and short life.' He appealed to all loyal Englishmen to drink cider until this dangerous 'droguo' was banished from the breweries. It was the ancients who above all delighted to 'fill up the glasses with treacle and luk and anything else that is pleasant to drink.' In order to prevent acidity, heighten the flavor or increase the durability of inferior kinds of wine, they put into the casks such seasonings as sea water, turpentine, pitch, tar, resin, vegetable ashes, gypsum, lime, almonds, parched salt, goats' milk, cedar cones, gall nuts and blazing pine torches—not to mention poisonous salts of lead. They were fond of mixing perfumed oils with their wine before they drank it. Even in the Homeric age it was considered that wine was improved by having goat milk cheese grated over it and being sprinkled with flour."

Kills a Murderer

A merciless murderer is appendicitis with many victims, but Dr. King's New Life Pills kill it by prevention. They gently stimulate stomach, liver and bowels, preventing that clogging that invites appendicitis, curing constipation, headache, biliousness, chills. 25c at J. H. Swan's.

Royal Poets of Great Britain.

By far the most famous and the best of British royal poets was James I. of Scotland. While a prisoner in Windsor Castle he composed his allegory, "The King's Quhair." It owed its origin to James' love for the Lady Jane Beaufort, a beautiful young lady nearly allied to the royal family, and of whom he became enamored by seeing her from the window of his room as she walked in the garden. She afterward became his queen. Queen Elizabeth wrote poems in prison. The unfortunate Lady Jane Grey and her equally unfortunate cousin, Mary Queen of Scots, both solaced their hours of captivity, destined to end on the scaffold, by learned studies.

is the hoarse, startling cough of a child, suddenly attacked by croup. Often it aroused Lewis Chamblin, of Manchester, O., [R. R. No. 2] for their four children were greatly subject to croup. "Sometimes in severe attacks," he wrote, "we were afraid they would die, but since we proved what a certain remedy Dr. King's New Discovery is, we have no fear. We rely on it for croup and for coughs, colds or any throat or lung trouble." So do thousands of others. So may you. NATIONAL CAPITAL AFFAIRS

Plans for Fortifications at Panama

WASHINGTON.—Work on the final detailed plans for the fortification of the Panama canal, for which an appropriation of $3,000,000 was made by congress and which had been the subject of wide discussion, national and international, ever since the digging of the big ditch was undertaken by the United States government, has been begun here by Brig. Gen. W. H. Bixby, chief of engineers, and Brig. Gen. Arthur Murray, chief of the coast artillery. Officials of the war department have already completed general plans for the fortifications, but maps will have to be prepared setting forth the details for the construction work before the ground can be broken, and it is this task which Generals Bixby and Murray are now undertaking. Active work on the building of the fortifications will begin about July. It is expected by the officials in charge that the fortifying of the waterway will be completed by January, 1915—the date set for the completion of the canal itself.

Brigadier General Crozier, chief of ordnance, has already drawn up plans for the manufacture of the $1,000,000 worth of guns and mortars required. These will be made at the government shops at Watervliet, N. Y. The entire armament will be used in fortifying the two ends of the canal, no provision having been made by congress for the defense of the locks and dams. Two sets of fortifications will be placed at the Colon end of the canal and one set at the Panama end. Four 14-inch rifles, eight 12-inch mortars and six six-inch guns will be placed at the Panama side and the remainder which the balance of the appropriation will provide at the Colon end.

Comparatively strong natural positions exist at both the Atlantic and Pacific ends of the waterway for defense against a land enemy. Limon bay, the Colon entrance to the canal, will be strongly fortified and fortifications will be set up on Perico island and at other points.

Plans for the protection of the docks at Pedro Miguel, Mia Flores and Gatun are now being drawn up.

Not a Penny for Pressing Trousers

MILLIONS for art and not one penny for pants!

The solicitude that Uncle Sam displays that the public buildings and driveways of the national capital shall be maintained in the most artistic and approved style does not extend to his public man. Uncle Sam is perfectly willing to spend loads of money for capital city plans, for guaranteeing that the Washington of the future shall be patterned after the most careful and exact designs, but when it comes to paying out money to make certain that the trousers of the government officials are creased properly and their clothes in as apple order as the capital's streets, he draws a distinct and impassable line.

This might never have been found out if it had not been for Daniel H. Burnham, of Chicago, master city planner and chairman of the fine arts commission. Incidentally he raised a question as to what are legitimate traveling expenses and what are not.

Not so very long ago Chairman Burnham left Chicago for Washington, to attend a meeting of the fine arts commission. Anxious, as its chief, to uphold the aesthetic and refined nature of this organization, he found on unpacking his wardrobe that many of his articles of clothing were in imperative need of a presser before they would be in shape to do credit to the vista of Pennsylvania avenue.

Without giving the matter a second thought, he turned the tailor's bill, with his railway ticket and Pullman expense, over to the treasury department, expecting to be reimbursed. The bill amounted to $4.75 and the auditor certified it, as a matter of course.

Not so, however, Controller Robert J. Tracewell—significant name—who can, on occasion, be considerable of a watch dog of the treasury. Mr. Tracewell scrutinized the bill, repeated the performance, and then, after some deep thought, wrote out a formal opinion as follows:

"The pressing of clothes has never, to my knowledge, been held to be a personal expense, occasioned solely by travel."

Attempts at Suicide Ignored in Army

THE fact that although attempted suicide is technically a crime in certain states in the United States, and civilians who violate the law are usually punished by the courts, officers and enlisted men in the United States army and navy are never court-martialed for this offense, was brought to light when the news was received from Germany that Emperor William had pardoned an army officer for attempting suicide and declared that he "deserved" to be judged neither by regular or honor tribunals.

Gen. George B. Davis, judge advocate general of the United States army, declared that since the organization of the army and navy of the United States no officer or enlisted man had been punished for trying to kill himself. It is a generally understood custom in both branches of the service, said General Davis, that this offense is not punishable by court martial, although a test case never has been brought up.

General Davis declared that attempted suicide is technically considered a crime in the army and navy.

"It is a fact that, although many men and officers of the army and navy have attempted suicide, not one of them has ever been court-martialed," he continued. "Just why this should be I do not know."

"In both the army and the navy attempted suicide is considered a crime, but has never been officially recognized as such. Both branches of the service frown on the practice, however."

The case in Germany, where Emperor William pardoned Count Hans von Prell after he had been convicted by a court of honor for this offense, cannot be compared to similar cases in this country, because suicide is looked upon differently there. In Germany an army man who commits certain offenses is almost expected to commit suicide, and therefore they would naturally be more lenient there. In the United States a man who tries to kill himself is looked down upon."

Judge Denounces Sunday Entertainers

JUSTICE HARLAN, associate justice of the Supreme court of the United States, rather startled society women of Washington and New York the other night when at the annual banquet of the Presbyterian alliance of Washington he declared that "there are a lot of snobs who have come down here from New York and other cities where wealth is paramount and have set up customs which are injurious to the people of this community. Sunday afternoon teas, musicales and other social functions are, in my mind, a desecration of the Sabbath. Something must be done to stem the tide of depravity which will otherwise sweep over us."

Then this sweeping rebuke to society in Washington is in a measure firmly upheld by Mrs. Matthew T. Scott, president general of the daughters of the American Revolution and herself one of the elite dwellers of the city. And be it known the elite dwellers are not the official set at all, but the old resident set of Washington. Until you have been admitted to that particular circle you are not really "in society."

Mrs. Scott says: "I think it is an outrage that so many of the leaders of society here should desecrate Sunday by giving large teas, dinners, musicales and other entertainments. The custom was brought here from the continent and has been growing ever since. If allowed to continue it will undermine the life of this country and bring ruin on us. I think that Sunday should be observed above all else, and that this continental habit should be stopped. I agree perfectly with Justice Harlan in all he said."

The custom of dinner giving, musicale entertaining and all that kind of thing on Sundays was really introduced in Washington by the Baroness Hengelmüller, wife of the ambassador of Austria-Hungary. It will be remembered that Baroness Hengelmüller only a few weeks ago gave out a screen against the "slowness" of Washington society and the lack of sprightliness and spirit in the matter of entertaining here, which got her into no end of trouble and sent her to bed with a serious nervous illness.

DISFIGURED WITH ECZEMA

"Our little boy Gilbert was troubled with eczema when but a few weeks old. His little face was covered with sores even to back of his ears. The poor little fellow suffered very much. The sores began as pimples, his little face was disfigured very much. We hardly knew what he looked like. The face looked like raw meat. We tried little bags of cloth over his hands to prevent him from scratching. He was very restless at night, his little face itched."

"We consulted two doctors at Chicago, where we resided at that time. After trying all the medicine of the two doctors without any result, we read of the Cuticura Remedies, and at once bought the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Following the directions carefully and promptly we saw the result, and after four weeks the dear child's face was as fine and clean as any little baby's face. Every one who saw Gilbert after using the Cuticura Remedies was surprised. He has a head of hair which is a pride for any boy of his age, three years. We can only recommend the Cuticura Remedies to everybody." (Signed) Mrs. H. Albrecht, Box 883, West Point, Neb., Oct. 26, 1910.

CHARITY AND CHEWING GUM

Disparity That Hardly Seems Creditable to the Generous Instincts of the Race.

According to a statement before a meeting of the Women's Foreign Missionary society of the Presbytery of Washington an interesting statement regarding the money spent for chewing gum and that given to charity was made. The speaker was Miss Mary W. Kerr of Harrisburg, Pa., in connection with the topic of "Frenzied Finance in Missions." In urging the society to be more liberal in its contributions to charitable work, she said: "For every $3,000 contributed to charity, $17,000 is spent for chewing gum."

The statement passed almost unnoticed except by a few, who saw the pertinence and logic of the remark.

Woman's Power Over Man

Woman's most glorious endowment is the power to awaken and hold the pure and honest love of a worthy man. When she loses it and still loves on, no one in the wide world can know the heart agony she endures. The woman who suffers from weakness and derangement of her special womanly organism soon loses the power to sway the heart of a man. Her general health suffers and she loses her good looks, her attractiveness, her amiability and her power and prestige as a woman. Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., with the assistance of his staff of able physicians, has prescribed for and cured many thousands of women. He has devised a successful remedy for woman's ailments. It is known as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It is a positive specific for the weaknesses and disorders peculiar to women. It purifies, regulates, strengthens and builds. Medicine dealers sell it. No honest dealer will advise you to accept a substitute in order to make a little larger profit.

FREE SAMPLE OF LAXATIVE CURED THEIR CONSTIPATION

When a person has become discouraged through years of failure to find a cure, and finally, perhaps, gives up trying, it is small wonder that he becomes skeptical. And yet, to all who have constipation, we would say, "Try just one thing more."

We wish you would try Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a laxative tonic that has been used for a generation. Thousands are using it; surely some of your friends among the number. You can buy it at any druggist at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle, but better still, send your name and address to Dr. Caldwell for a free sample bottle. He will send you enough to convince you of its merits, and then if you like it you can buy it of your druggist. Mr. J. J. Petty of Unionville, Mo.; Mr. George W. Zimmerman of Harrisburg, Pa., and many others of both sexes and in all parts of the country first used a sample bottle and now have it regularly in the house.

You will learn to do away with salts, waters and cathartics for these are but temporary reliefs while Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is guaranteed to cure permanently. It will train your stomach and bowel muscles so that they will do their work again naturally without outside aid. Cast aside your skepticism and try Syrup Pepsin.

Colds and Chills Bring Kidney Ills

February, March and April are the backache months, because they are months of colds, chills, grip and pneumonia, with their congesting, weakening influence on the kidneys. Colds, chills, or grip strain the kidneys and start backache, urinary disorders and uric acid troubles. You feel lame, weak and tired and have headache, dizzy feelings, achy muscles and joints; too frequent, painful urinary passages, sediment, etc. Chills hurt the kidneys. Likewise well kidneys often prevent taking cold, by helping to pass off the waste matters of cold congestion. Doan's Kidney Pills are very useful in the raw winter and spring months. They stop backache and urinary disorders, keep the kidneys well and prevent colds from settling on the kidneys. Strong testimony proves it. What better evidence could you ask?

TERRIBLE CASE OF DROPSY.

Lebanon, Ind.; Man Gives Vivid Description of His Suffering.

John T. Anderson, 613 W. Main St., Lebanon, Ind., says: "I was taken suddenly with agonizing pains through my kidneys, followed by a stoppage of the urine. I called in a physician, but he gave me only temporary relief, by drawing the urine with a catheter. I was seen in such agony I could not lie in bed, and for four weeks sat in a chair, propped up by pillows. After about a month, it seemed as if something burst and I passed a regular flood of water, mixed with blood and mucus. After that I had not a particle of control over the secretions. The doctor said he could do no more for me, and every one thought I would die. My friends marvel at my recovery. Nine boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills saved my life and made a permanent cure. I gained 28 pounds and have had no trouble since."

TEN YEARS OF SUFFERING.

Restored at Last to Perfect Health by Doan's Kidney Pills.

Mrs. Narelson Waggoner, Carterville, Ill., R. F. D. No. 2, says: "For over ten years I suffered terribly with backaches, headaches, nervous and dizzy spells. I was restless at night and in the morning arose so tired as to be almost unable to do my housework. The kidney secretions were unnatural and gave me a great deal of trouble. One day I suddenly fell to the floor where I lay for a long time unconscious. Three doctors who treated me diagnosed my case as paralysis and said they could do nothing for me. As a last resort I began using Doan's Kidney Pills and was permanently cured. I am stronger than before in many years and my kidneys are in perfect condition."

Much might be said concerning the new styles---their beauty, elegance, simplicity and origin; yet no words could do justice; descriptions could give you but a vague impression of their charm. You must see them.

Not only are the styles worthy of strongest emphasis, but the materials and tailoring are deserving of the highest praise, while our low prices are a feature to be considered. We trust that you will make a special effort to view these new modes during the opening week.
